ISSUE 19: COMMUNITY COLLEGE FUNDING FORMULA

California Community Colleges

The conference compromise on the Community College Funding Formula adopts a new formula for colleges that includes the following:

- A three-year phase-in that begins by providing 70% enrollment-based funding, 20% funding based on the enrollment of low-income students, and 10% funding based on performance outcomes. Over a three-year period the formula would shift to 60% enrollment-based funding, 20% funding based on the enrollment of low-income students, and 20% funding based on performance outcomes.
- A hold-harmless provision that will guarantee all colleges at least a cost-of-living increase for three years. The conference compromise provides an increase to community college apportionments of $378 million Proposition 98 in 2018-19. . Of this funding, $151 million is for the base allocation, $24 million is for the hold-harmless provision, and $34 million is one-time discretionary funding for colleges.
- A definition of low-income students that includes students eligible for the Pell Grant or the California Promise Grant (formerly BOG Fee Waiver.)
- A blended equity success measure that rewards colleges for successful outcomes for both Pell-eligible and California Promise Grant students.
- The May Revision success metrics, which reward colleges for associate's degrees awarded, associate degree for transfer's awarded, certificates of 18 or more units awarded, completion of 9 or more CTE units, transfers to a four-year institution, completion of transfer-level math or English, and attainment of a living wage. Extra points are earned for any of these successes for low-income students.
- The creation of an oversight entity, with representatives chosen by the Governor, Senate Rules Committee and the Speaker to continually monitor implementation of the funding formula and make recommendations to the Legislature, Governor and Chancellor for its improvement.
